

The City Cook "I brought Animus Rex my idea for TheCityCook.com and they turned it into a stylish, effective and seamlessly functioning site. They accomplished this using much more than programming or computer code.

"First they were strategic and imaginative, seeing the potentials of my ideas and making them work.

"Second, they were smart and skilled, plus patient with me when everything we were doing together was, for me, either new or unfamiliar.

"Third, they provided an elegant platform in Eskort that lets me run and operate my site as an independent enterprise.

"And finally, they were both acutely professional and also lots of fun to work with. A real dream team."
