"We found Animus Rex after an exhaustive search of Web designers. They came to us highly recommended and have proven themselves to live up to their excellent reputation. We originally hired them to design web sites for our clients, and then had them design our own site, a measure of the satisfaction we received from them. When working with our clients, they were extremely buttoned up, stayed on budget, were excellent listeners, were very timely and a pleasure to work with, often under trying situations and committees. They delivered all they said they would and our clients were very happy with the results and the process.

"An even greater challenge for them was developing our own web site. We're a creatively driven advertising agency, so you can imagine dealing with creative people who always believe they have the right answer. The team at Animus Rex was up to the challenge. They added a great deal of creativity, dealt with our egos, handled the last minute changes with grace, and produced a site that we like a lot, is a real reflection of our personality and has gotten great reviews from everyone who has seen it.

"Our continued faith in Animus Rex is reflected in the fact that we continue to recommend them to our clients."
